Ignored the anger

This election result comes as no surprise to anyone but the Premier and his deputy who have for years ignored the fact the voting public is outraged about their decision to bring a failed rugby league team to Perth at a cost of $90 million when history has shown that this State has little interest in rugby league.

All to satisfy the Premier's desire to see that unattractive game played in Perth.

Further outrage they have ignored is over his deputy's desire to destroy a beautiful park so that she can enjoy the smell of burning rubber and high-octane gasoline at a cost of $350m. And these politicians have seen night after night on the evening news the homeless sleeping rough on the side of main roads. We're basically sick and tired of their warped sense of priorities. The voters are listening to ferocious attacks on One Nation and thinking: can they do any worse than those governing us now?
