Crises in black and white

I wonder if Roger Cook reads The West Australian's opinion pages, such as the one yesterday. Two really well-written pieces on shark mitigation and child care — one a "debacle" and the other a child protection "crisis".

Add this to a housing crisis, a hospital crisis, a cost-of-living crisis and it seems all we get from the Roger and Rita show is racetracks, a rugby league startup and a $32 million spend on "public information" propaganda about green energy and infrastructure builds.
