New definition solves it

The recent WA Government advertisements for the controversial racetrack now show that it has been rebranded as a "multi-use track for cycling training and competitions, as well as an annual motor sport street circuit event".

What a masterstroke. Now all our lycra-clad latte sippers will think it's for their exclusive use, as they currently do with shared bike paths. It is now guaranteed to be an unqualified success.

Name and address supplied