Letters war won

In The Sunday Times last week there were two letters about the state of WA and its politicians.

One was written by P. Bryan ("WA Labor report card glitters"), where I think they must be getting around wearing very heavily tinted rose-coloured glasses. The other letter by Lena McKenna ("Lacking leadership") stated how we have a fourth-grade premier running a bunch of minnows. Well, I know which one I prefer, Lena. You have got the prize of the top letter of the two. P. Bryan, get out and talk to those of us not wearing rose-coloured glasses about the way we are penalised by your outstanding team.

MARGARET ANNE RYAN
Ballajura

ALP cheerleader

It appears P. Bryan of Leederville is the cheerleader of WA's Labor Party, with his glowing report on their achievements.

There is no mention of the ludicrous amount of hours spent by ambulances ramping, nor that of the mass of homeless people sleeping on our streets. Nor is there any reference to the shambles concerning our health system, such as patients sleeping in corridors and a wait of sometimes years to see a specialist. No mention either of the not wanted, but going to get, motor racetrack along with a dud rugby team. It is difficult to accept the "glowing report" with such outstanding items that need attention and more for the benefit of the WA public.

RICHARD SIMS
Perth

Energy freedom

Bernie Masters has given the perfect answer as to why renewable energy is the way

fo
dr
in pr
sh
or
th
wl
av
re
ev
or
w
co
gi
in

Strait-out terrorism

FOR THE RECORD