

Honestly, it's not just me

Richard Sims (Letters, 31/3), I am not the only supporter of the racetrack and rugby team, but one of many — and, yes, I do ask people before I speak for them.

The Bears NRL team is creating a mass of grassroots interest in the game. More kids becoming involved in sport can only be a good thing. Surely you can agree on that if nothing else?

And, yes, Dirk Botje (Letters, 31/3), I am dinky-di and am looking forward to seeing these “glorious unwanted projects” finished and people utilising and enjoying them.

Jim Bartlett, Kewdale

Restricted views

When questioned on his stance regarding the future of greyhound racing in WA, Premier Roger Cook wouldn't commit to closing it down, saying “we need to balance everyone's views in this” (News, 31/3).

Why then has he not used this logic regarding the three pet projects that no one — except the guy in Monday's letters pages — wants? Those being the racetrack, ferry and rugby team.

Cook clearly doesn't read the letters pages.

Greg Bartlett, (no relation to Jim) Wanneroo

Do as I say, not as I do

Good old Roger the Dodger wants businesses to “do the right thing” and pass on savings (News, 31/3).

Great words of advice coming from one person I would have never thought knew the meaning of the words. I’m wondering why he does not practice what he preaches in regard to anything coming out of Parliament, like, say, a waste of money rugby team and the stupid racetrack his partner in arrogance so badly needs.

Garry Williams, Dudley Park